Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 30 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Sunnier and warmer, but low cloud affecting some eastern coasts.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any showers over Northern Ireland and Scotland soon fading, then most places dry with clear periods. Low cloud affecting some east facing coasts, particularly North Sea coasts, then developing further inland overnight along with some mist or fog patches.

Monday:
Fine and warm with plenty of sunshine for most places, with low cloud and fog soon clearing inland, but affecting some North Sea coasts throughout where it will be cooler.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Fine and warm Tuesday, chance of rain in extreme north-west. Warm to hot Wednesday, showers/thunderstorms spreading north. Fresher Thursday, although far south-east could remain hot. Turning cloudier in the north.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.